

Suspending of Studies

Part-time students

If you are thinking about taking time out from university, there are financial implications to be aware of. The actual costs will differ depending on your individual circumstances and at which point in the year you suspend your studies, please see below for more information.

Do I have to repay back any scholarships or bursaries I have received from YSJ?

If you are eligible for the Aspire Scheme your account will be suspended and you will no longer have access to the funds. For bursaries and scholarships, the university will be in contact with you in regards to any under/ overpayments. If you are receiving any other funding from the University or an external agency, please contact them direct for advice.

How much do I owe in tuition fees?

Part-time students charged by academic year.

Students who start their studies in September
Student suspends during:	Fee Liability
Fee Liability Period 1 (2 October – 31 December)	25% of full fees
Fee Liability Period 2 (1 January – 7 April)	50% of full fees

Do I have to repay back my loans?

If you suspend your studies Student Finance will reassess the funding you have received. Your loan entitlement will be recalculated based on your period of attendance until you suspended, the university will use your last date of attendance as your suspended date and inform Student Finance of this.

If any of your loan covers the period after you've left your course, this counts as an overpayment and you'll need to repay it straight away.

Once you have been reassessed, the Student Loans Company will send you a letter to confirm any overpayments and when these need to be repaid. If you need to make any repayments straight away, please contact them to arrange this in a way which is affordable for you.

You will also be sent a new Notification of Entitlement letter. This will show your reduced loan entitlement.

Suspension of Studies

Part-time students

If you suspend your studies due to ill health and the university confirms this with Student Finance, you can continue to receive a further 60 days of all your support without providing supporting evidence to Student Finance. For the university to be able to return you as suspending on ill health you will need to state this on your application for suspension of studies and will need to provide substantial medical evidence.

For further information on suspension of studies and the implications, please visit our Suspension of Studies webpage.

When do I re-apply for next year's funding?

You can re-apply for funding once the applications become available; this is normally in February/ March time. If you are returning mid-year, Student Finance will be notified of your return date and will pro-rata any funding you are eligible for. If you are repeating the full year, you will need to make sure that you state on the application that this is a repeat year. This question will be asked in your funding application.

Repeating a year

If you are repeating a year following your period of suspended study, this can affect your student finance. The number of years that you can get student finance is normally calculated as:

Length of current course + 1 year - number of years of previous study = funding years remaining

Even if you only attended a course for a short time, it will count as a year of previous study.

Part-time students

If you have Compelling Personal Reasons (CPR) as to why you are suspending from university, such as illness or bereavement, you can write a letter of Compelling Personal Reasons to Student Finance so that the year in question does not count when they are calculating the funding years that you have remaining.

For more information on this, please visit Going back to uni or repeating a year

Further Information

If you need more information or your circumstances aren't covered here, you can contact Student Finance on 0300 100 0607 between 8am and 8pm, Monday to Friday and Saturday to Sunday between 9am and 4pm.
