

York St John University subscribes to Cite Them Right Online a referencing tool that includes the APA style. The APA Style blog which includes multiple examples, is also useful.

Your referencing includes two main parts:

- a citation within the text of your assignment
- a list of references at the end of your assignment

In-text citation:

Number or type of authors	Author inside the brackets (see examples 1 and 3)	Author outside the brackets (see example 2)
One author	(Walker, 2019)	... Walker (2019) argues that ...
Two authors	(Walker & Allen, 2004)	... according to Walker and Allen (2004) ...
Three or more authors	(Walker et al., 2019)	Research by Walker et al. (2019) shows that ...
Organisation	(York St John University, 2017)	Advice from York St John University (2017) states that ...

Note: et al. should always be used for in-text citations where there are three or more authors. For two authors, both surnames are always given in the citation.

Examples:

1. Excellent study skills are fundamental to academic success (Cottrell, 2010).
2. Cottrell (2010) argues that excellent study skills are fundamental to academic success.
3. "The importance of academic skills should not be underestimated" (Cottrell, 2010, p. 19).

The reference list – key examples

Your reference list should be completed in alphabetical order by author's surname, regardless of the type of source. Only sources that you have directly cited in your work should be included; a separate bibliography is not required.

Multiple authors rule: in the reference list, for sources with up to and including 20 authors, all authors should be listed. Use an ampersand before the final author's name. For sources with 21 or more authors, include the first 19 authors followed by an ellipsis (...) and then the last-named author.
