Introduction and Special Features

A Masters in Business Administration (MBA) is an internationally-recognised and highly-regarded award. Whether you are already in a management position and wanting to take your career to the next level, or aspire to leadership roles in the future, the York Business School Masters of Business Administration (MBA) in Strategic Human Resource Management and Leadership has been designed to help you gain the skills, knowledge and experience you need to give yourself that competitive edge. The programme provides you with the opportunity to gain a practitioner-focused MBA, laying the foundations for a critically aware and holistic understanding of business management, with a particular focus on strategic human resource management and leadership. This MBA combines an in-depth understanding of strategic human resource management (SHRM) with a broader exploration of its organisational and management context. Your knowledge will be integrated and contextualized through a range of modules, culminating in a capstone project.

You will explore issues that have significant impact within organisations by working with others and building on both personal individual experiences and comparing and contrasting with those of cohort members. You will carry out projects and assignments designed to help you apply the theories, tools and techniques you learn. Much of the learning is developed through the establishment of collaborative learning communities of programme participants and tutors and you will become part of that community of learning. Your understanding is developed around the key skills, processes and practices of business, management, strategic human resource management and leadership. Solutions to real problems are suggested, discussed and analysed within the learning community with the support of tutors and fellow learners.

You will develop a critical understanding of the issues relating to business, management, strategic human resource management and leadership, which will enhance your ability to maximise individual and organisational potential. The MBA Strategic Human Resource Management and Leadership brings together relevant contemporary academic theory and research with practical understanding of activities within organisations. This will be developed by enabling you to share knowledge, relate this to theories developed from relevant research, and learning by practical application. Through the development of an integrated and critically aware understanding of management in the context of contemporary business issues, the programme involves you in a demanding process of personal and professional development.

Special features of the programme include:

- Enables you to develop a sound understanding of the skills necessary to undertake a role in any organisation
- Reflects the aspirations in the development of responsible and ethical managers
- Supports the development in the skills of leadership in order to operate effectively and competently in an international context
- Assessment methods used to mirror organisational based activities
- Provides a supportive platform for critical reflection, through the application of academic theories to your real work situations
- Participation in active and supportive forums drawing on practical expertise
- Programme content contextualised to region of delivery
- Excellent personal and academic support. You will be allocated an academic tutor to support you throughout the programme

Admissions Criteria

You must meet the University's general entry criteria for postgraduate study. In addition, you must have:

- A bachelor's degree or equivalent, achieved at Class 2.2 or above, from an approved university or institution, or
- Current or recent work experience (within the last two years) appropriate to enable you to contribute to the programme.

If your first language is not English, you need to take an IELTS test or an equivalent qualification accepted by the University (see <https://www.yorksj.ac.uk/international/how-to-apply/english-language-requirements/>).

If you do not have traditional qualifications, you may be eligible for entry on the basis of Accredited Prior \(Experiential\) Learning \(APL/APEL\). We also consider applications for entry with advanced standing.

Programme Aim(s)

The overall aim of the programme is to develop your critical understanding and self-awareness of the issues relating to business, management, strategic human resource management and leadership, so that you may develop your own leadership skills and knowledge and develop both your individual and organisational potential. The programme aims to reflect the aspirations in the development of responsible and ethical managers, supporting development in the skills of leadership in order to operate effectively and competently in an international context.

The specialist element of the programme aims to support you in exploring the strategic aspects in relation to strategic human resource management and leadership in order to prepare you for a career that equips you to consider the business issues for managers and leaders working in the field of quality management.

You will be supported as you:

- develop critical awareness and understanding of business generally and specifically relating to strategic human resource management and leadership;
- develop the ability to connect theory with practice in creative and innovative ways and reflect upon the learning involved as well as the outcomes;
- develop critical awareness and understanding of the role of managers within the context of business sustainability, corporate social responsibility and ethics, helping you undertake effective roles in business organisations as responsible managers
- develop and enhance life-long learning skills and personal development in order to work with self-direction and originality.

Learning, Teaching and Assessment

A key part of the philosophy of the programme is that by bringing together relevant academic theory and practical experience, you can enhance your deep understanding of these elements, and develop yourself as an individual and as a leader.

All modules are delivered utilising a range of teaching, learning and assessment strategies including lectures, seminars, tutorials, workshops and global café style learning activities. All modules are assessed through a programme of work undertaken whilst studying for the award. A range of assessment tools are used including presentations, critical essays, portfolios and reflective journals and case study work. Each module tutor will provide opportunities for formative assessment feedback to inform your work prior to submission.

The piece of work completed as part of the Capstone Project must be in the specialist area of strategic HRM and/or leadership.

You will receive detailed feedback on assessment to help you develop and continuously improve your performance whilst on the programme. Advice will be provided in relation to development, further areas for research and guidance on how to enhance your subject knowledge.

You will receive the opportunity for study support including academic writing and research skills to enhance employability and career development in the field of business management.
