Introduction and special features

Law is an intellectually challenging and stimulating subject that enables students to develop a broad range of transferable professional skills and which equips them for a professional career in a variety of fields and disciplines. You will explore the role of law in our community, our society and internationally and will be supported to evaluate the object and effectiveness of laws with regard to current events.

As a student of Law at York St John University, you will be known and supported as an individual. You will be taught by a dedicated team of academics and legal professionals each committed to providing a high-level of pastoral support and an engaging, inclusive teaching experience.

On this programme, you can gain experience as a student advisor in York St John Law Clinic during each year of your study, enabling you to gain valuable experience in a professional legal environment. If you later wish to seek to qualify as a solicitor in England & Wales, you may apply the time spent in the clinic towards the two years' Qualifying Work Experience (QWE) which you will need to undertake prior to being admitted to the roll of solicitors.

¹ The standard period of study will apply unless otherwise stated

You will have the opportunity to study each of the Functioning Legal Knowledge (FLK) subject areas which comprise Solicitors Qualifying Examination 1 (SQE 1), which is the first of a two-part national examination required by the Solicitors Regulation Authority to be taken after graduation for those who seek to qualify as a solicitor in England & Wales. Further study would need to be undertaken to prepare for this examination and to cover the vocational elements which comprise Solicitors Qualifying Examination 2 (SQE 2).

Subject to certain academic criteria being met, students on this programme can meet the requirements of the Bar Standards Board relating to the academic component of training for admission to the Bar. You will be provided with guidance in relation to this.

During the first two years of the programme (Levels 4 and 5), you will study modules which lay the foundations in terms of the knowledge and skills needed for success. In the first year, you study Contract Law and The Civil Justice System, The Law and The State and Criminal Law and The Criminal Justice System across the year to enable tutors to blend foundational knowledge and skills organically, through simulated case studies which introduce you to clinical legal practice and enable you to visualise issues in context. You will undertake field visits to see the law in action and will be taught how to turn experience into learning through effective reflective practice.

In the second year of study, you begin to study more technical areas and explore the role of law in our society, community and internationally. Students will undertake live client work through York St John Law Clinic and have the opportunity to Study Abroad in Semester 2.

At the end of the second year of study, you have the opportunity to apply to transfer to our MLaw programme if you wish to undertake academic legal study through to masters' level, or our MLaw Legal Practice if you wish to work towards a career in legal practice and study each of the components required for Solicitors Qualifying Examination 1 & 2 (SQE 1 & 2) and gain additional Qualifying Work Experience (QWE). Transfer to Level 7 of the MLaw programmes is dependent on students meeting progression requirements.

In the third year of study on this programme you will undertake a final compulsory module in Equity and Trusts before choosing up to five optional modules from a wide range of stimulating specialist legal subjects. These can include a dissertation, a legal placement and a year-long experience in York St John Law Clinic.

You will join a vibrant student community and benefit from useful careers advice and development opportunities throughout your studies and optional field trips to legal institutions which will enhance your experience.

The special features of this programme include: -

- The opportunity to gain experience and transferable skills in York St John Law Clinic across all three years of study
- Studying modules comprising the Functioning Legal Knowledge for the purposes of Solicitors Qualifying Examination 1 (SQE 1) and the Foundations of Legal Knowledge for the opportunity to meet basic requirements for admission onto a Bar Practice Training Course (BPTC)
- The chance to transfer to our MLaw or MLaw Legal Practice programmes at the end of your second year if you decide to pursue a 4-year integrated academic master's programme or to prepare for a career in legal practice
- Vocational teaching and assessment which focusses on supporting you as an individual and helping you to develop valuable transferable skills in the context of a broad and balanced curriculum which invites you to think critically about the impact of laws locally, nationally and internationally

Admissions criteria

You must meet the minimum entry requirements which are published on the programme specific webpage.

If your first language is not English, you need to take an IELTS test or an equivalent qualification accepted by the University (see <https://www.yorksj.ac.uk/international/how-to-apply/english-language-requirements/>).

If you do not have traditional qualifications, you may be eligible for entry on the basis of Recognition of prior learning \(RPL\). We also consider applications for entry with advanced standing.

Programme aim(s)

The aims of this programme are to: -

1. Provide you with a thorough grounding in the fundamental concepts in, and principles of, the law of England & Wales, enabling you to think critically about the law and its role in our society;
2. Give you a grounding in the foundational areas of law associated with entry to the legal profession, should that be your ambition; and
3. Enable you to develop as a lifelong learner with the transferable knowledge and skills to succeed in the modern world of work.

Programme learning outcomes

Upon successful completion of the programme students will be able to:

Level 4

- 4.1 Identify, explain, discuss and apply fundamental concepts, principles and values of the law of England & Wales to develop lines of arguments and make sound judgments.

Study Abroad is available as an option in Level 5, Semester 2.

Please note that not all options may be available every year as they depend on student demand and staff availability. In March each year, students at Level 5 will choose their modules for the next academic year. We will make clear which optional modules are to be offered and whether minimum numbers of students are required to enable them to run. You will be provided with videos introducing each module to you and invited to an Options Talk with staff to help you make your selections. Once you have made your selections, we will advise you promptly if any of your chosen modules have not met requirements for minimum numbers and which other modules you may choose from.

Any modules that must be passed for progression or award are indicated in the table above as non-compensatable. A non-compensatable module is one that must be passed at the relevant level (with a mark of 40) in order to progress.

Learning, teaching and assessment

You will typically be taught by way of a socratic lecture introducing a topic followed by a workshop, for which you will be required to prepare, which will allow you to put what you have learned into practice.

Lectures make use of interactive technologies such as Mentimeter to enable you to contribute anonymously to whole group discussion and for tutors to quickly assess understanding of core concepts. Workshops involve a maximum of 25 students and facilitate collaborative groupwork to share ideas and engage in activities. Workshops typically reflect on your preparation before introducing activities to apply learning in new contexts and finishing with a plenary to reflect on what has been learned and deepen understanding.

In modules such as Commercial Law & Practice, Family Law & Practice and Mental Health Law & Practice you study the substantive law in an academic context alongside a relevant live client experience in York St John Law Clinic to enable you to acquire skills in a relevant context and reflect on the law in action.

In clinical modules such as Law in our Community and Clinical Legal Practice you will undertake the role of student advisors in one of our community legal projects or within York St John Law Clinic with responsibility for managing the relationship with your clients and progressing your clients' cases from initial interview through to completion under the supervision of qualified staff and practitioners.

You will encounter a range of assessments which are designed to be educationally impactful and develop skills. These include Multiple Choice Examinations (MCQs) in subjects covered by the Solicitors Qualifying Examination to prepare you for the type of assessment you will encounter in that context, essays which allow for independent research and the development of reason and critical argument, portfolios will allow for the practical application of knowledge as a topic progresses, and IT examinations which enable authentic assessment which require you to undertake tasks which demonstrate your knowledge and skills in a real-world context.

Progression and graduation requirements

The University's general regulations for undergraduate awards apply to this programme.

Any modules that must be passed for progression or award are indicated in the Programme Structure section as non-compensatable.

*Module LAW6027P - Clinical Legal Practice

if personal circumstances in Semester 1 impact a student's ability to engage with the clinical experience such that there is a risk to completion of the programme, they may be permitted to transfer to module LAW6044P Clinical Legal Practice (Short Course).
