

We needed to make sure that artists understood that they have rights in the research process. Some of the rights we all understood quickly.

Your Rights

1. you have the right to have your say.
2. You have the right to support.
3. You have the right to feel safe and say no.
4. you have the right to privacy.
5. you have the right for it to feel worthwhile.

"you don't have to answer if you don't want to!"

we all have something to say.

Support is when people use Easy Read.

Other rights needed more talking about to fully understand, including the right to privacy.

Since researchers will be writing about I'm Me, it's important to be clear about what you do and don't share. We used a fictional cat as a way to talk about how we'd feel about different personal experiences being public.

I don't think so.

If you were drunk and ran over your cat would you want it in the newspaper?

NO!!!

Privacy is particularly complex when you want to give people credit for their ideas

This is a respectful space -

But not a confidential space.

What does worthwhile mean?

It shouldn't feel like a waste of time!

It feels worthwhile when people pay attention and listen to you.
